

Cine Cuba Films

June 30th The Horn of Plenty (El Cuerno de la Abundancia)
Dir: Juan Carlos Tabío 2008. News of the distribution of a pirate treasure deposited in a London bank two centuries before leads to passionate feelings and mishaps in a small Cuban village.

July 28th El Comandante Dir: Oliver Stone 2003. Documentary about Fidel based on interviews conducted in 2002 with Oliver Stone on a wide range of topics. Forerunner of his 'South of the Border' film which we showed last November.

September 29th El Benny Dir: Jorge Luis Sanchez 2006. Based on the life of Benny Moré, renowned Cuban singer; the film concentrates on a period in the early 1950s, turbulent for the singer as for his country. His life is affected by the struggles going on around him.

October 27th Chirimbolo Dir: Het Vervolg 2011. Four short documentaries about the remarkable way in which progress Cuba is being made in the field of alternative energy, one of the reasons it is deemed by WWF as the only country practising sustainable development. A tribute to human creativity.

November 24th The Man from Maisinicu Dir: Manuel Perez 1973. 1964 - Alberto Delgado, administrator of the Maisinicu farm is found, dead. What happened to him and who was he really? Based on a true story this b&w film is atmospheric, a tale of mystery and intense violence telling us much about conditions following the Revolution.

Cine Cuba is a monthly film club, generally held on the last Monday of the month (no film in December) & organised by North London Cuba Solidarity Campaign (NLCSC), showing films from or about Cuba. We aim to show films which provide an insight into the Cuban Revolution and the society, politics, history and culture of Cuba. Where possible we invite guest speakers with a special interest in the film topic We hope that viewers will stay at the end of the film and participate in the relaxed post-film discussion. Entry is free (with a requested donation to cover costs).
